

ENGLISH WEEK

12 months a year, 4 weeks a month and 1 week dedicated to our favourite subject English! What is English? English is reading, writing, grammar, and practicing. Despite only being a subject, English is imperative in our life. We read to ourselves to gain knowledge, we read to others to spread the same knowledge. We write to create the reservoir of our memories, the eventful things of our life, we write to convey our emotions. We write as poets, as storywriters, as journalists. Writing is the best medium to express ourselves and to say unspoken things. What about grammar? Do we do it for ourselves or do we do it for others? We do it for English, to be correct, to not to be mistaken.

Language is the infinite use of finite means

.” – Wilhelm von Humboldt.

Time to learn language beyond chalk and talk through fun communicative activities. We are pleased to announce that we'll take up next week as “English Project Week” Students are encouraged to come up with some interesting projects, videos with the material available at home, the best of these will be shared on the facebook.

Few suggestions for VIDEOS

- You can choose any topic and speak on it for half a minute (Extempore)
- Narrate a recipe while practically showing the process
- You can read articles on TUK and summarise them in your language.
- Choose to speak on current issues like social distancing pros and cons
- Narrate a story in your own words with props
- Take up a proverb and elaborate on it relating it to present situation such as “Every cloud has a silver lining” – How this lockdown has proved out to be a blessing in disguise
- You can choose to enact the character that you relate to the most in the story that you have read.

- As Mother's day is approaching you can draw a portrait and share how they will surprise their mother in this lockdown period.
- You can also switch the role and pick up any topic of grammar and explain the same using props.
- Create a book mark and write a motivating quote that inspires you the most.
- Based on the quote, or a sentence or a metaphor from the chapter that you are currently practicing, narrate a story relating it to your life.
- You can choose to perform a tongue twister such as
"How many cookies could a good cook, if a good cook could cook cookies?"
